

Who Acquired Whom?

The world has changed

VMware has announced its intent to acquire Heptio

Microsoft to acquire GitHub for $7.5 billion

Salesforce agrees to buy
MuleSoft in $6.5 billion deal

Adobe to acquire Magento for $1.68B

Cloudera and Hortonworks announce
$5.2 billion merger

Red Hat acquires CoreOS

IBM to acquire Red Hat for $34 billion

And so is Adobe (Growing activity in open source...)

- 1 Mozilla
- 2 SUSE
- 3 Pivotal
- 4 Unity Technologies
- 5 ThoughtWorks
- 6 ESRI
- 7 Alibaba
- 8 Microsoft
- 9 Baidu
- 10 Google
- 11 Tencent
- 12 Adobe
- 13 Facebook
- 14 IBM (+ RHT)
- 15 SAP SE

Increasingly open APIs, too

~1.5B API calls/month

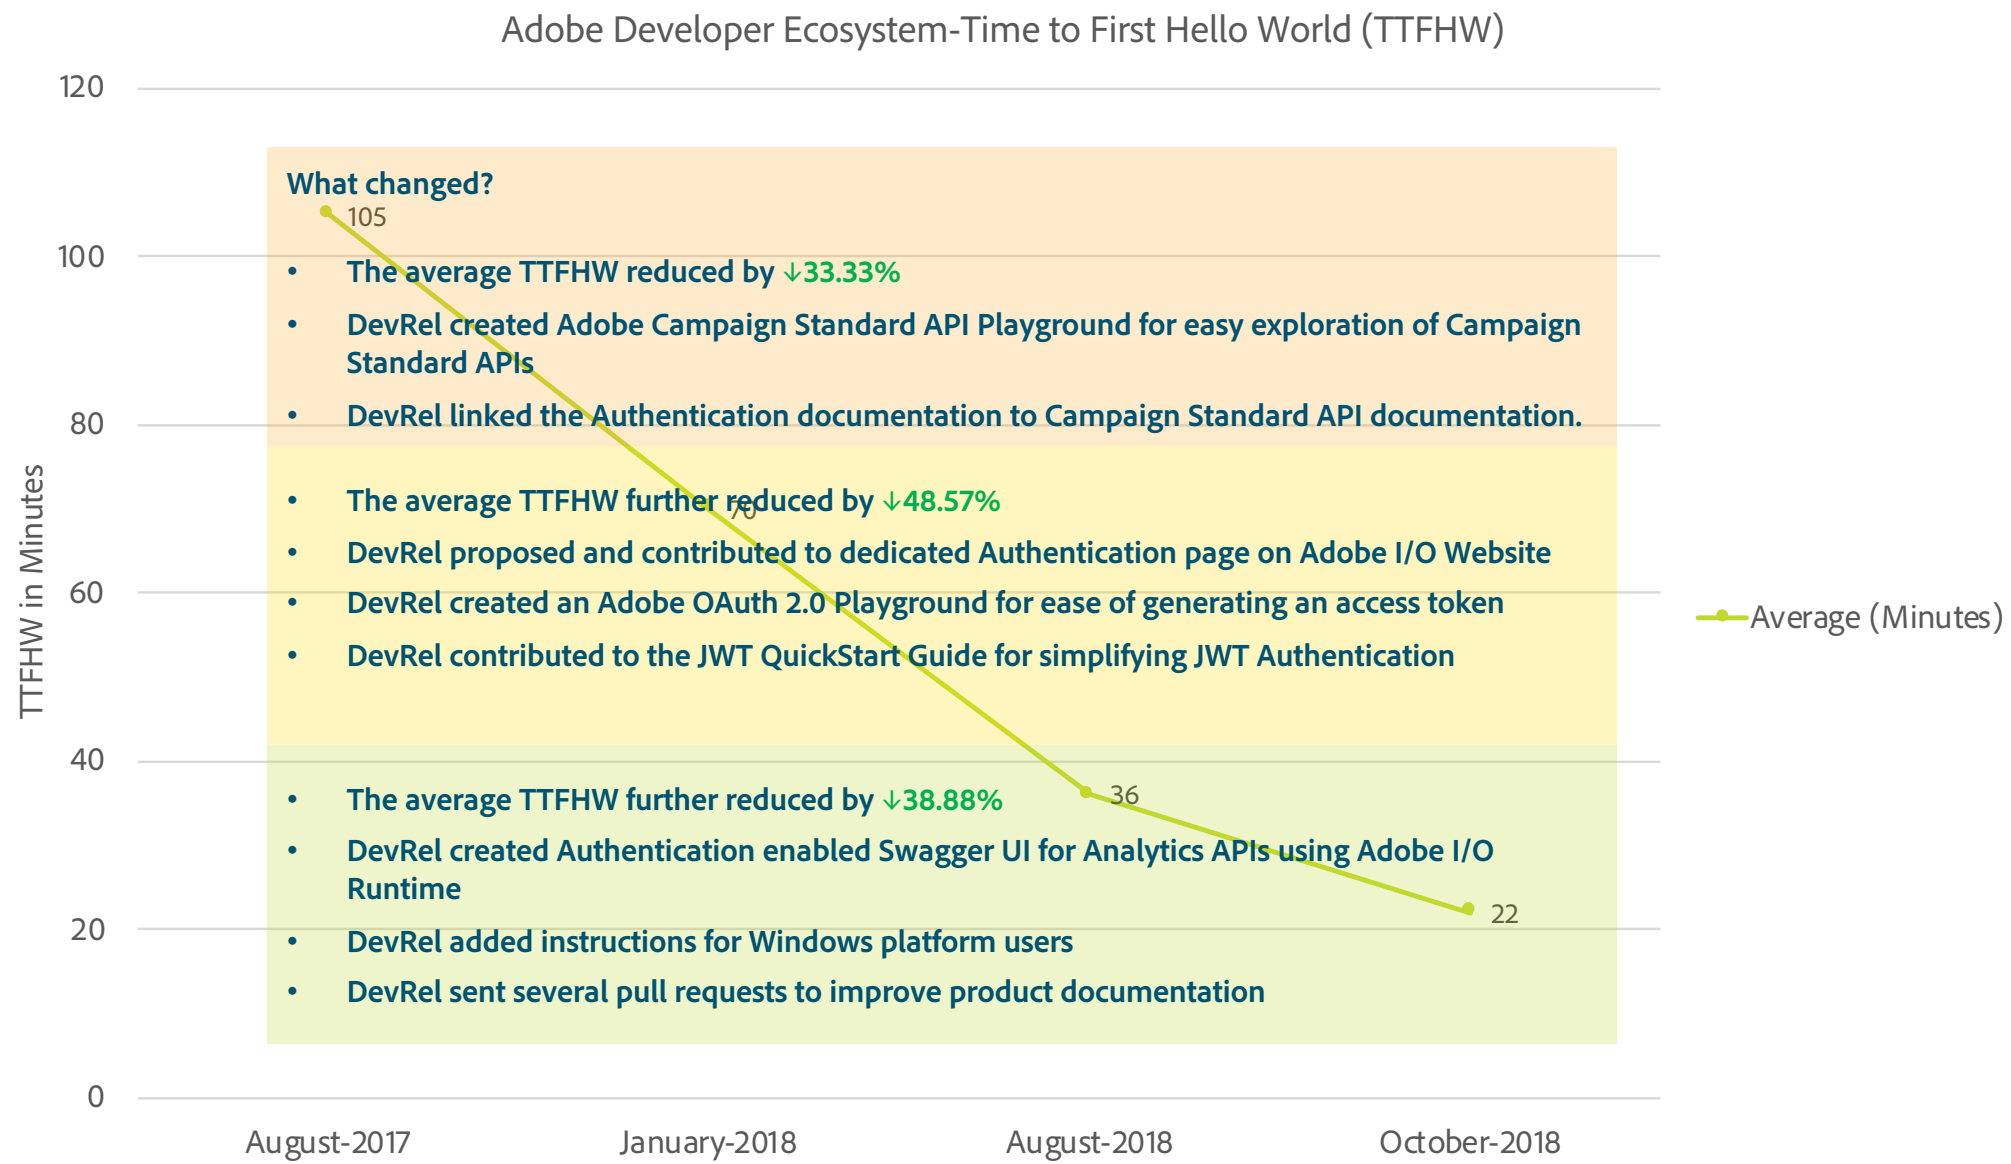

(and growing)

What we can give back...

How did we do it?

A close-up photograph of a honeycomb. The honeycomb is composed of many hexagonal cells, each filled with a golden, viscous substance (honey). The cells are arranged in a regular, repeating pattern. On the left side of the image, there is a large cluster of bees. The bees have yellow and black striped bodies, translucent wings, and are actively moving around. The background is a solid, bright yellow color, matching the honey in the cells.

315,000 or 5,702?

Adobe